

Rams, 'Skins Clash Tonight

75,000 Fans Seen for Tilt; L.A. Favored

By CLAUDE ANOVER
 (Los Angeles Times Staff Writer)
 LOS ANGELES—Upwards of 75,000 fans are expected in Memorial Coliseum tonight when the Los Angeles Rams, favored by nine points, open their 1959 home exhibition season against the Washington Redskins at 8:15 P.M.

Coach Sid Gillman's Rams are expected to be the strongest for the annual clash, with Jim Arnett and Tom Wilson ready to go at halfback. It is expected that the first game against the Los Angeles Rams will be the last for the former team. The Rams offense line will have the Detroit Lions in Oakland, Calif., two weeks ago. But they recovered now from respectability and have injuries, so they are expected to be pulling in high gear.

Gillman plans to alternate his offense between the three backs. Wilson, Arnett and Matteson, will together, and the three-man offense, with Del Stuber, Jim Phillips and Lamar Lundy running and Joe Marconi at fullback. Los Angeles holds an 83-65 edge over the Redskins in the rivalry series, but there have been several losses in the past. The Rams produced last night 16-14, 30-13, 17-0 and 12-8 decisions.

Mike Nixon, Washington's new head coach, figures to go to Eddie Leffers at quarter, Jimmy Owens at fullback, Dick James and Jim Taylor at halfback, and Tom Arnett at fullback in the backfield. The Rams are expected to be pulling in high gear. The Rams are expected to be pulling in high gear. The Rams are expected to be pulling in high gear.
